

In the editorial section, Ruth M Warwick et al. (314) explain why a global coding system is needed to track medical products of human origin. Zafar Mirza et al. (315) describe a landmark study on public health, intellectual property and trade. In the news, Gary Humphreys (318–319) reports on changes in Gabon's health insurance system and health economist Igor Sheiman (320–321) talks to Fiona Fleck about a new health financing model in the Russian Federation.

Treating HIV

James H McMahon et al. (377–385) collect the evidence for antiretroviral treatment.

Limiting infectious spread

Kamran Khan et al. (368–376) model different strategies for screening airline travellers during a pandemic.

Neonatal deaths in second pregnancies

Fengxiu Ouyang et al. (357–367) study the reoccurrence of neonatal deaths and stillbirths.

Organizing the health system

Jon Mark Hirshon et al. (386–388) make a case for better acute care services.