

In the editorial section, Peter Ventevogel et al. (666) call for the provision of mental health care in humanitarian emergencies. Brien A Holden et al. (667) emphasize the importance of better global estimates of presbyopia.

In the news section, Dale Gavlak reports on health workers' struggles to help civilians caught up in the conflict in Yemen (670–671). Rodrigo Guerrero-Velasco tells Alyssa Greenhouse how violence can be understood and prevented using an epidemiological approach (672–673).

Values at stake in security agenda

Lisa Eckenwiler et al. (737–738) discuss the unintended health impacts of counterterrorism policies and practices.

Eliminating podoconiosis

Kebede Deribe et al. (712–718) propose case definitions and elimination targets for endemic non-filarial elephantiasis.

Treating paediatric tuberculosis

Meaghnann S Weaver et al. (700–711) analyse the design, delivery and outcomes of interventions to improve treatment adherence in low-resource settings.

Antenatal care in prisons

Molly Skerker et al. (739–740) describe obstacles to providing care to incarcerated pregnant women.

Selecting essential medicines

Corrina Moucheraud et al. (693–699) evaluate the quality of economic data in applications to the WHO Model List of Essential Medicines.